the story

This is Saint Mary's College — facing towards the future, but always conscious of the past. The administration and faculty from thirty-four American and European Universities . . . The buildings — of residence, study, and recreation . . . And You — the Students of SMC, representing forty-five states and six continents. This is your story — for it is your book written by you, about you, and for you.

college

Science and mathematics, literature,
languages, history, philosophy, theology,
fine arts . . . to probe, know, wonder at
. . . to create, enjoy . . . to share.

The Saint Mary's Family . . . a surprise party in the Dec, a hand of bridge and a cigarette. Across the Dixie . . . games, dances, long walks.

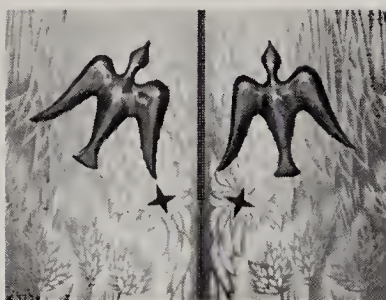

Mass in Loretto,
Missa Cantata,
walks to the grotto,
the chapel at 10:15.
". . . to God who gives joy to my youth."

O'Laughlin Auditorium, opera, ballet, and Broadway musicals. Spirited discussion, provocative lectures . . . a hushed audience, the roar of applause.

Dedicated to

all at Saint Mary's College who look to the future, who see life forever opening in an infinitude of doors in Time and in Eternity.

To those responsible for the policies and operation of a complex organization,
from curriculum details to finances,
to IBM automation,
to buildings.

THE ADMINISTRATION

To all those who invite students to enter doors which they have found worthwhile or who point the way to challenging new gateways.

THE FACULTY

To those whose un-
flagging vitality,
curiosity, and enthusiasm annually
discover new doors
as well as old.

THE STUDENTS

To guests who come
for a few hours or a semester to open doors to their specialties.

Apology for Youth

by SISTER MADELEVA

Stand at my window;
watch them pass:
a lass and a lad,
a lad and a lass.

This is a way
to go to school,
learning an olden,
golden rule.

They seek for wisdom
in a book;
then they look up
and look and look.

And wonder, wonder
if, after all,
wisdom is so reciprocal.

They ask for beauty,
ask for truth
who have no thought
to ask for youth.

Theirs are the earth,
the sea, the sky;
they sing; they dance;
they float; they fly.

Why do they hurry,
hurry so?
Can they or will they
or do they know?

They will earn some love;
they will learn some truth,
but never learn
nor earn back youth.

Stand at my window,
lad and lass;
let not this youth,
this young love pass.

Hold the wonder;
love the lore
you would one day change
the slow years for.

EXPEDITION EXPLORATION

The first day, the first class. Unpacking was a hurried affair. New people and places. Big Sisters and roommates to be met, rooms to be found, the campus to explore, shopping to do. The Dixie Shuttle, talk of football.

All in the future was our year, with its highlights and day to day living in what the college bulletin calls the Saint Mary's family.

... AND I'M TAKING MODERN DANCING!

Registration day brought the endless lines characteristic of any college campus. Once we had decided upon our courses, the rest seemed easy, except for those multiple forms. Many of us were lucky and had no Friday afternoon classes or no eight o'clocks on a morning or two each week.

The picnic sponsored by our Big Sisters was a welcome relief after the rush of registration, the shopping on and off campus. To sit for awhile and just talk . . . and the food was delicious. The juniors gave us numerous tips on everything from how not to gain weight to how to study for logic tests.

WOULD YOU BE FREE ON OCTOBER 1?

On Sunday the Notre Dame freshmen made their first visit to the campus. We spent the afternoon playing tennis, dancing, or just sitting around and getting acquainted with those on the other side of the Dixie. The afternoon went much too quickly, but plans for the future were made — for a show, a pep rally, a Victory Dance.

I AM COMPLETELY, ABSOLUTELY EXHAUSTED

Monday marked the beginning of our first full week of school. Trunks and boxes continued to arrive. Trips to the bookstore were becoming less frequent, while those to the postoffice increased. Ten minutes between classes could be a bit hurried when the distance covered was Saint Angela's to the Science Hall with a stop in Holy Cross. It seemed that all our skirts were too long — and they seemed so short last spring. However, amid the rather hectic confusion of those first few weeks, there remained time for recreation and relaxation in the Pebble where we could compare experiences and laugh about some of our mistakes.

WHITE HANKIES AND THE ECHO YELL . . .

Pep rallies and football games were no longer the novelty of freshman year, but still remained the highlight of the fall quarter. Knee socks and crew necks, hurried lunches at school or in the Huddle, visiting parents, beautiful weather — all were typical of the football Saturdays. If the final scores were seldom cheering, frequent fast action and close plays occasioned excitement in the SMC stands. Another stop for coffee, a moment at the Grotto, then back to school.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Retreat, an all too short Thanksgiving break, preparations for the Christmas holidays, shopping in South Bend, on saved-up 10:30's, for those at home and at school kept us busy until vacation.

The sophomores assisted Student Council at the Faculty Children's Party and at the South Bend parties. On December 21, with carols of the night before echoing in our ears, we joined the homeward trek.

AS AN ANTHROPOLOGY MAJOR, I WOULD . . .

January came to a close in the confusion of exams, parties for Paris and Vienna-bound classmates, stories of skiing fun, good times in Chicago, or just a good long rest at school. After much consideration and discussion, we chose our majors.

BUT MY BLAZER IS AT THE CLEANERS . . .

In addition to the traditional cotillion, the sophomores this year initiated several new class social functions, including barbecues in the fall, the sophomore dessert dance, and a winter skating party.

Participation in extra-curricular activities became more important too. We willingly gave our time and energy to Student Development, the Social and Academic committees, and the Julians. In the Spring, we formulated September's freshman orientation program.

JUNIORS

Junior year means the willingness to accept the duties and responsibilities of an upperclassman. There are multiple opportunities for all SMC girls in this matter. Many organizations and branches of Student Government are headed by juniors. School and class projects also offer juniors the chance to exercise the capacities for leadership which they have acquired in their first two years at school.

As juniors, having discovered and participated, now we must assume the responsibility of leadership. These two words come to have a true meaning to the SMC upperclassman. Opportunities are offered. Initiative and desire are the most essential elements in the assumption of our new role.

Junior year meant an earlier than usual return to school to act as official hostesses to the incoming freshmen. The fruits of the last spring planning were readily seen in the successful orientation period. Through panels, teas, picnics, mixers, and campus tours, the freshmen were given an introduction to their new life at SMC.

Significant, too, of the junior year, was our entrance into our major fields. The Home Ec majors told of cooking triumphs or catastrophes. Those in English were seen struggling with the inevitable stack of paperbacks. History and Christian Culture people decided to rent permanent space in the library, and friends in science established a second residence in the Science Building.

THE HOLLY AND THE IVY . . .

Results of careful planning were observable again at the Christmas dinner. The variety of carols and the beautiful simplicity of the decorations brought enthusiastic comments from students, faculty and administration. Everyone looked a little bit tired at breakfast on Wednesday, but the general consensus of opinion was that it was a task well done.

Soon after our return from Christmas, preparations were being made for our participation in the Notre Dame Mardi Gras. Workers were recruited to plan and promote our booth, and everyone waited hopefully when the raffle winners were announced. All juniors chimed in congratulations to their classmate, Joan Brickman, who held the lucky number when the Saks wardrobe was raffled.

As the end of the year drew near, ring orders were taken, and measurements for caps and gowns. Schedules for senior year were planned. Questions on student teaching were decided. Watching the seniors make final graduation plans, we realized that our own day was not so far away now.

SENIORS

As seniors we soon realize the full importance of our first three years. We now understand the meaning of the phrase "time flies." We look towards June with mixed emotions — sorrow, for college life was great; and anticipation, for we are about to enter the world for which our parents, teachers, religion, and education have prepared us.

CLUBHOUSE

Senior year—prestige and responsibility. So many things for the "last" time — last game, last class, last term paper. Multiple job applications and graduate school forms with which to cope. Bike rides and the long walk down the avenue.

Realization of the giving aspect of education — as a teacher, nurse, play director, or medical technologist.

The Campaign — beginning with the mock convention last spring. The mock election — a Kennedy victory, as SMC goes? The Liberal mind versus the Conservative mind. Registration, absentee ballots, last minute predictions, the long wait into Wednesday morning. The winner . . . discussion, argument, — stimulation.

FORTUNATELY, MY VOTE WILL CANCEL YOURS

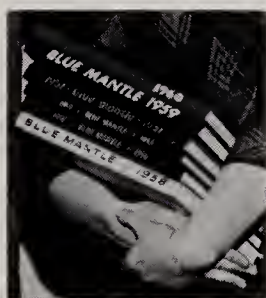

Senior Ball, the lights of O'Laughlin, the strains of music on the warm May night.

Class rings and academic gowns. Baccalaureate, the 116th annual Commencement. Memories of friends, events, and experiences. Awareness that what has been a whole way of life is about to become a memory.

The good works of the religious organizations can be observed throughout the year. In addition to enriching her own spiritual life, the Saint Mary's student has an opportunity, through the work of the religious organizations, to aid others in their search for and study of God. Largely because of the efforts of these clubs, we have come to understand the need of an informed and active lay apostolate.

Many of the clubs and organizations at SMC are coordinated with specific fields of study. Thus, participation in their activities gives a student an extremely painless method of acquiring knowledge extra-curricularly. Most of the study clubs invite interested students from other areas to join in their discussions and projects. For this reason, a greater wealth of understanding and appreciation is available to all by participation.

dramatics

In November, "The Birds," a Greek comedy by Aristophanes, was presented by the Drama Department. The play was staged in a modern setting following the adaptations of Walter Kerr. Judging from audience reaction, we say good humor can never die.

and music

"Whistle A Happy Tune" was the number one song at SMC this March after production of the student musical, "The King and I." This famous Broadway hit thrilled five sell-out audiences, plus an additional performance on Parent Week-end. The show was unforgettable from the first note of the overture to the last curtain. The singing, the costumes, and the remarkable ability of the children captured the hearts of the onlookers and made "The King and I" a highlight of the spring.

DR. TOM DRIVER

In February, Saint Mary's welcomed at interdenominational medieval drama workshop. Approximately one hundred and fifty-two drama teachers, actors, and directors came to study and to stage medieval drama under the direction of the E. Martin Brownes, internationally famed medieval authorities.

Diversity is the key to entertainment in O'Laughlin: a jazz concert, a symphony orchestra, a piano concert, regularly scheduled productions by active drama and music departments, lectures, dramatic and musical productions by nationally famous groups such as Players, Inc. in the "Orestia."

Ski Trip—Semester break and skiing are gradually becoming synonymous in the mind of the SMC student. After the pressure of exam week, fresh air seems to be the best remedy for post-exam fatigue. Caberfae, where the novice and the expert join in the brotherhood of skiers, is the spot usually chosen for this wintertime sport. After donning a variety of scarfs, sweaters, and mittens, our SMC girl is ready to be fitted with skis.

ski trip

Now, to reach the slopes without disgracing herself is her omnipresent thought. Some people prefer to take a lesson or two before attempting the tow, but then again there are always those who like a true challenge. After a day on the slopes, one last decision is to be made. Shall I go back and go to bed or shall I go to the party sponsored by the SMC-ND ski clubs for just a little while?

Chairmen for the Weekend: Anne Botelle, Carol Morrissey, Joan Roddewig, Sheila Burke, Barbie Breen.

Parent weekend — The King, The Queen, and I — highlighted March for freshmen and juniors. "Have you met my parents?" were the words on everyone's lips March 3-5. At teas, panel discussions, dinner or brunch, there was much opportunity to meet SMC — the students, the administration, the faculty and the campus. The climax of the weekend came when a special preview of the student musical, "The King and I," was presented on Saturday night.
